Good Roads In The West

The article appearing in this column last week dealing with the influence and effect of good all-weather roads upon school attendance, better schools and the development of rural high schools, concluded with a reference to what the Province of Quebec is doing in good roads building and the markedly beneficial effect it is having on agriculture, industry and education in that Province, and how enthusiastically the people there are in support of the issuance of a policy which is creating such an improvement in the life and prosperity of the Province.

What is being accomplished in Quebec is not only of direct benefit to that Province, but indirectly it benefits Canada as a whole, although, it must be admitted, the effect will not be very noticeable in these Western Provinces except that, insofar as Quebec advances, the whole Dominion is advanced and benefited by what has been regarded as our most backward Province coming in line with the other Provinces. The good roads program of Quebec is a sign of an awakened Province, and those roads will prove a most influential factor in making the Province still more progressive.

The question is: Are the other Provinces of Canada, and more particularly these Western Provinces, going to emulate Quebec's example in respect to good roads construction? It can hardly be doubted but that they will, and the question then arises, how soon are they going to begin to create a system of hard-surfaced main highways? The further question presents itself: Is the present an opportune time for the inauguration of such a policy?

We submit that now is the accepted time, and we propose to give a few reasons for that belief. The Dominion Government has recently provided a vote of $20,000,000 to be paid to the Provinces on a population basis, covering a period of five years, to be expended in highway construction. By the terms of the grant the Provinces are required to spend an even larger sum in order to become entitled to the Dominion grant. That is to say, for every $100,000 supplied by the Dominion, the Provinces must put up $150,000. As the Dominion agrees to furnish $20,000,000 within the next five years, it means that the Provinces will have to furnish $30,000,000, thus providing a grand total of $50,000,000, or $10,000,000 a year to be spent on highway construction in Canada. Surely, therefore, now is the time above all others to embark on a program of construction of permanent roads, and not merely make-shift dirt roads.

Of this $30,000,000 of Dominion money, the three Prairie Provinces will receive the following amounts: Alberta, $1,478,000; Manitoba, $1,602,000; Saskatchewan, $1,806,000, a total for the three Provinces of $4,886,000—say, in round figures, $5,000,000. The Provinces will be required to furnish an additional $7,500,000, thus providing an annual sum of $2,500,000 for the next five years. If this money is wisely expended on permanent roads, Western Canada at the end of the five-year period will have something to show in good roads, and we venture to predict that the advantages resulting from such highways will lead the people to insist that the good work be continued.

The next question that will present itself is: Can these Western Provinces finance their proportion of this program, and at the same time continue to spend the large sums necessary in these new Provinces on what are pioneer roads and which must be built to enable farmers in remote districts to get to market. Let us take Saskatchewan as an example, and what is true of it is proportionately true of Manitoba and Alberta.

In this present year of 1919 Saskatchewan will derive a revenue from automobile licenses of upwards of $800,000. Saskatchewan's annual grant from the Dominion under the proposed new highways scheme will be $361,200 a year, which will call for a further provincial expenditure of $241,800. Saskatchewan can find this from its automobile license revenue and still have a quarter of a million dollars left over. And surely automobile license money should be spent on roads, and good hard-surfaced permanent roads at that.

Furthermore, if our Western Provincial Governments take over full responsibility for the building and maintenance of certain main roads in municipalities, and thus relieve the municipalities of all expenses in connection therewith, the municipalities benefited thereby could, in turn, well afford to make the small grants of a few hundred dollars they may now receive from the Province for every dollar they thus relinquished they would receive several dollars back in the form of permanently constructed and maintained main roads.

The largest number of automobile owners in these Western Provinces are farmers. Hard-surfaced roads will extend the period of time in the year that motor cars can be used, and will reduce the wear and tear on the same, thus increasing their value to the farmer. Their greater value and utility will lead to a further increase in the number of cars used, and consequently, provide a still larger license revenue from which a consistent and ever larger program of good roads construction can be carried on.

The moral of the situation would seem to be that every Western farmer should become a good booster, and should bring all possible legitimate pressure to bear upon the Provincial Government to embark upon a well-planned, progressive program for the construction of permanent hard-surfaced main roads.

Prohibition Helps

Boston To Save

Save About $100,000 This Year In Cost of House of Correction
Boston—Boston will save about $100,000 this year in the cost of the House of Correction on Deer Island, as a result of prohibition, it is announced. Already $25,000 of the appropriation granted for the institution this year has been turned back.

Since July 1 the population of the institution has declined rapidly. In 1915, the number of inmates was about 1,100. There are now only 300. One of the prison buildings will be abandoned this winter, and this step will mean a large saving in cost. Although employees have generally received increases in pay since 1915, it is estimated that the cost of Deer Island this year will be only $202,400.36, as against $305,679.78 in 1915.

PAINFUL RHEUMATISM

May Be Driven Out of the System

By Enriching the Blood
In the days of our fathers and grandfathers rheumatism was thought to be the unavoidable penalty of middle life and old age. Almost every elderly person had rheumatism, as well as many young people. Medical science did not understand the trouble—did not know that it was rooted in the blood. It is the fact that rheumatism was the mere effect of exposure to cold and damp, and it was treated with liniments and hot applications, which sometimes gave temporary relief, but did not cure the trouble.

In those days there were thousands of rheumatic cripples. Now, medical science understands that rheumatism is a disease of the blood, and that with good, rich, red blood any man or woman of any age can defy rheumatism, can be cured by killing the poison in the blood which causes it. There are many elderly people who have never felt a twinge of rheumatism, and many who have conquered it by simply keeping their blood rich and pure. The blood making blood enriching qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is becoming every year more widely known, and it is the more general use of these pills that has robbed rheumatism of its terrors.

At the first sign of poor blood, which is shown by loss of appetite, palpitations, dull skin and dizziness, protect yourself against the further ravages of disease by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have cured thousands of people—if you give them a fair trial they will not disappoint you.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Completing Pulp Mills

In Two Months Operation Will Probably Be Inaugurated

Victoria, B.C.—The large pulp mills which are being erected at Beaver Cove, up the coast, are fast nearing completion. In two months operation will probably be inaugurated with a product of fifty tons of paper a day. A large number of returned soldiers have been given employment at the plant. A railway for hauling the timber will be constructed and work has been started on the town-site. Manager White expects that the new industrial centre will have a population within three years and in time emulate such paper towns as Swanson Bay, Ocean Falls and Powell River. There is a steady market for paper on the Pacific, the United States, Australia, New Zealand and Japan being regular buyers.

Webster On "Morale"

MORALE (Mor-ahl) n. (F. See Moral, at the moral standard, or the condition in other respects, as it is affected by, or dependent upon, moral considerations, such as duty, honor, and conscience; mental state, as of a body of men, an army, and the like.

HAT is Dr. Webster's definition. Many of us know the word only in its was-time application.

Webster dwells firstly upon the usage of the word "morale" as applied to the common-place happenings of every-day life. His allusion to its reference to an army comes later. And Webster is correct—meticulously so.

It is his private-life morale that made such splendid soldiers of our boys when the time came for them to don the khaki. It was that, and that alone, that made them take the first step, and it was that which carried them through to victory. If their every-day morale had been neglected, the Army could have done little with them and success would not have crowned their efforts.

It is the many little incidents of your daily routine that make up your morale—the morning shave, your clean linen, polished shoes, brushed clothes. Webster speaks of zeal, spirit, hope and confidence. It is by attention to the small details of your personal appearance that these may be attained.

The Gillette Safety Razor enters as much into the morale of every-day life as it did into that of the trenches. It helped our soldiers to maintain their confidence and bearing. It will do the same for you. The Gillette Safety Razor makes the daily shave come easy—there is no pulling or scraping—no honing, or stopping—just five minutes of perfect shaving comfort. And, afterwards, a chin that tells of morale and self-respect.

THE COW PUNCHER

— by — ROBERT J. C. STEAD

Copyrighted, Canada, 1918, By The Mussion Book Co., Ltd., Toronto. Printed By Special Arrangement.

This was bad enough, but when the speaker went on to say that this was God's plan; that there had to be a sacrifice; and that no other sacrifice was sufficient to appease the wrath of Jehovah directed toward those whom He had created, Dave found himself boiling with indignation. If this was Christianity he would have none of it. His instruction in religion had been of the most meagre nature, but he had imbibed some conception of a Father who was love, and the doctrine of the sacrifice of the innocent crashed through all his slender framework of belief. Had he been told of a love which remained steadfast to its ideals even at the cost of Calvary his mind would have responded as to the touch of a kinder spirit, but the attempt to fit that willing sacrifice into a dogmatic creed left him adrift and rudderless. Suddenly from somewhere in his memory came the words, "Thou shalt become as the justice of God." It was Reenie Hardy who had asked that question. And he recalled his answer, "I don't know nothing about the justice of God. All I know is the critter 'at can't run gets caught." Was he then in sympathy with this doctrine of cruelty without knowing it? No, No! Reenie Hardy had believed in justice and he would believe in the same. He rose from his seat and walked down the aisle and out of the building, oblivious to the eyes that followed him. His feet led him to the river, running brown with the mud of spring. He sat on the gravel, in the warm sunshine, and tossed pebbles into the swift-flowing water. . . . He had determined on a new find, but how was he to find the road? Environment had never been kind to him, and he was just beginning to realize its power in shaping his destinies. He was dissatisfied, but he did not know where to find satisfaction; he was bewildered, and nowhere was there a clear path before him. He was lonely. He knew a room where a little game would be in progress; he arose, brushed the gravel-dust from his Sunday clothes, and wended his way down town.

A crowd was entering the theatre which he had attended the night before. He looked at it wonderingly, as by statute the theatres were closed on Sundays. Still, it was evident something was going on, and he went in with the others. No tickets were required, and an usher showed him to a good seat.

It was not long before Dave realized that, he was in a Socialist meeting. He knew rather less of Socialism than he did of Christianity, but the atmosphere of the place appealed to him. They were earnest men, in their working clothes, with tobacco or beer on their breaths, and in their low-whispering he caught familiar phrases which made him feel at home.

When the speaker said something to their liking, they applauded him; when he crossed them they denounced him openly. Interruptions were frequent, and sometimes violent, but Dave admired the spirit of fair play which gave every man a chance to speak his mind. Through it all he gathered that there were two great forces in the world, Capital and Labor, and that Capital was a selfish monster with a struggle-on-Labor and choking him to death.

No, not quite to death, either, for Capital needed Labor, and therefore only choked him until he was half dead. Also there were two classes of people in the world, the Masters and the Slaves. Dave was a Slave. He had never known it before, but the speaker made it quite apparent.

"But I'm not a slave," said Dave, suddenly springing to his feet. "I can quit my job tomorrow, and tell my boss to go to hell."

There were boos and cat-calls, but at last the man on the platform made himself heard.

"And what will you do, my friend, after you have quit your job?" he asked, quite courteously.

"Get another one," said Dave, without seeming the trap. "There's lots of jobs."

"That is, you would get another master," said the Socialist. "You would still have a master. And as long as you have a master, you are a slave." And Dave sat down, confused and wondering.

After the main address there was a sort of free-for-all. Half a dozen sprang to their feet, each seeking to out-talk his neighbor, and it was with difficulty the chairman obtained order and established a sequence of events. An old man in the gallery read loudly from Victor Hugo while a speaker in the orchestra declaimed on Single Tax. Finally the old man was silenced, and Dave began to learn that all the economic diseases to which society is heir might be healed by a potion compounded by Henry George. Another in the audience started to speak of the failure of the established system of marriage, embellishing his argument with more than one local incident of a salacious nature, but he was at last required to give place to a woman who had a more personal grievance to present.

"You talk about your masters and your slaves, and your taxes and your marriages," she said, "and in a shrill voice that penetrated every corner of the building, 'I can tell you something about masters and slaves. I'm hearing everywhere that what this country wants is population; that is the talk of the politicians; and the learned men, that are supposed to know. Now, what is the country doing for those that bring the population—not from the slums of Europe, that is not what I'm asking—but for those that bring the native-born population—the only population that doesn't have to be naturalized? I'm the mother of six, and what has the country done for me but leave me at the mercy of those who charge more for an hour's education than my old man can save from a month's drudgery? And then, with my health broken down—in the service of the State—I have to go to the hospital, and they tell me I must have an operation, and I wake up with a horrid pain and a bill for a hundred and fifty dollars. All done in an hour, or less, and that's the bill, or part of it, for the hospital dues and the extras and ceteras are still to come. Masters and slaves! Master, did you say in a year, or two years, and no one to say whether it will do or not. When my kitchen pipes are plugged a plumber fixes them and charges me a dollar, and if he doesn't do it right he has to do it over again, but when the human pipes go wrong the master charges a hundred and fifty dollars, and if he doesn't do it right he collects just the same, and the under-taker adds another hundred. Now I don't know whether I am a slave under the head of Capital or Labor or Single Tax, but I do know it is out-

If Breath Comes Hard If Nose Is Plugged You Have Catarrh

Perhaps you haven't heard of the new remedy—it's so pleasant to use—fills the nose, throat and lungs with a healing balsamic vapor—like the air of the pine woods. It's really a wonderful remedy—utilizes that marvelous antiseptic only found in the blue gum tree of Australia.

The name of this grand specific is Catarrhazine, and you can't find its equal on earth for colds, catarrh or throat trouble. You see it's no longer necessary to drug the stomach with irritating drugs, or simply inhale the balsamic essences of Catarrhazine, which are so rich in healing that they drive out every trace of Catarrh in no time.

For speakers and singers and persons troubled with a irritable throat, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh or a gripe, Catarrhazine is of inestimable value.

The inhaler can be carried in your pocket and may be used at any time or in any place.

Large size, guaranteed, and sufficient for two months' use, costs $1.50; smaller size, 50c. Catarrhazine, 25c. Sold by all storekeepers and druggists.

rageous extortion—extortion of blood money, imposed by the wealthy and prosperous on the poor and the sick and the unfortunate, and while the State clamors for population it does not raise a finger to protect those who are bringing the nation-born."

During this philippic Dave turned toward the woman; her thin face still wore marks of refinement and even his uncultured ear recognized a use of English that indicated a fair degree of education. But she was broken; crushed with the joint-curses of motherhood and poverty, and oversteer at the injustice of a system that capitalized her sacrifices. He had heard much talk of slaves, but here, he felt, he saw one, not in the healthy, well-fed men of their deep muttering against employers, but in this haggard woman from whose life the lamp of joy had gone out in the bitterness of suffering and physical exhaustion.

He spent the rest of the day alone, thinking. He was not yet sure of any road, but he knew that his mind had been made to think, and that his life was bigger than night than that he found in the morning. He might not find the right road at once, but he could at least leave the old one. He felt a strange hunger to understand all that had been said. He felt, also, a tremendous sense of his own ignorance.

ance; treacherous, but not enraging; a realization that the world was of things to be learned; problems to be faced; conclusions to be studied out, and underneath a sense of almost exultation that he should take part in the studies and perhaps solve the problems. It was a new world, a new world of reason, and it charmed and invited him. He would follow.

He went early to bed, thinking over all he had heard. His mind was full, but it was not a good sleep. It was a strange sleep, a sleep with a sense of worthwhileness as he recalled it in the semiconsciousness of approaching sleep. . . . The music had been good. It had made him think of spring and the deep woods, and water. . . . and wood smoke.

It was about a far-away land. . . . and Reenie Hardy. She was very like Reenie Hardy.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Fortunate star, or whatever god acted it is that sometimes drops unexpected favors, designed that young Elden should the following day deliver a talk on the work of Mr. McViney Duncan. Mr. Duncan, tall, quiet, forty-five, was at work in his garden as Dave turned the turn in the lane and backed them up the long, narrow drive connecting with the family coach. As the heavy wagon moved straight to its objective Mr. Duncan looked on with approval that heightened into admiration. Dave shovelled his load without remark, but as he stood for a moment at the finish wiping the sweat from his coal-grimed face Mr. Duncan engaged him in conversation.

"You handle a team like you were born to it," he said. "Where did you get the knack?"

"Well, I came up on a ranch," said Dave. "I've lived with horses ever since I could remember."

"You're a rancher, eh?" queried the older man. "Well, there's nothing like the range and the open country. If I could handle horses like you there isn't anything would hold me in town."

"Oh, I don't know," Dave answered. "You get mighty sick of it."

Elden asked a keen glance at him. The conversation was becoming personal. Yet there was in Mr. Duncan's manner a certain kindness, a certain appeal of sincere personality, that disarmed suspicion. "Yes, I got sick of it," he said. "I lived on that ranch, eighteen years, and never was inside school or church. Wouldn't that make you sick? . . . So I beat it for town."

"And I suppose you are attending church regularly now, and night school, too?"

Dave's quick temper fired up in resentment, but again the kindness of the man's manner disarmed him. "He went to the women's and the men's," he said. "No, I ain't. That's what make me sick now. I came in here intendin' to get an education, an I've never even got a start at it, except for some things perhaps wasn't worth the effort for the women and the men."

"There always will be," said Mr. Duncan, "until you start."

"I suppose so," said Dave, wearily, and took up the reins.

But Mr. Duncan persisted. "You're not in such a hurry with that train," he said. "Even if you are late—now if you should lose your job over it—that's nothing to settling this matter of getting started with an education."

"But how's it to be done?" Dave questioned, with returning interest. "Schools ain't books cost money, an I never save a dollar."

"And never will," said Mr. Duncan, "until you start. But I think I see plan that might help, and if it appeals to you it will also be a great convenience to me. My wife likes to go driving Sundays, and sometimes on week-day evenings. But I have so much to do on hand I find it hard to get out with her. My daughter used to drive, but these new-fangled automobiles are turning the world upside down—and my wife a buggy with it. They're just numerous enough to be dangerous. If there were more or less they would be right, but just now every body is suspicious of them. Well—as I saw you driving in here I said to myself, 'There's the man for that job of mine, if I can get him,' but I'm not rich and I couldn't pay you regular wages. But if I could square the account by

Would Free Land From All Tyranny

London.—Premier Lloyd George, speaking before the International Brotherhood Congress, as was expected, did not touch upon many of the important questions in which the nation is deeply concerned.

The Premier was given an enthusiastic reception, and began by saying that a political platform was not involved at the meeting. "If I made a political announcement," he added, "I should feel that I was outraging the hospitality of the brotherhood."

He expressed the hope that all armaments would disappear and that the long drawn misunderstandings between Ireland and the rest of the kingdom would also pass.

"I am looking forward," he continued, "to seeing waste in all forms disappear and a new Britain springing up—a really free land, free from poverty, from the tyranny of mankind over mankind. Some people seem to think that I have accepted the position of leading council for the old order. Rather than that, I would throw up my brief tomorrow."

Concluding with an appeal for fair play among all classes, he exclaimed: "It is not sufficient to say we have won the war. We want to reclaim the wildernesses of the world, and redress wrongs. That is due to the immortal dead. They died for the redemption of the world."

Thomas Howell, a Canadian delegate, in endorsing the vote of thanks to the Premier, said he understood Mr. Lloyd George intended to visit the western world. In this case, Mr. Howell said, he hoped the brotherhoods of the United States and Canada would have an opportunity to greet him on their platforms.

Mr. Lloyd George, in acknowledging the vote, referred to the possibility of a visit to America.

Kingston Editor Goes to Saskatchewan
Kingston, Ont.—J. Courtland Elliott has retired from the Whig editorial staff to accept the position of assistant to Prof. W. Swanson, head of the department of political science in the University of Saskatchewan, at Saskatoon. Mr. Elliott is a graduate in arts of Queen's University and is a son of J. G. British Profiteers Denied
London.—The profiteering act, despite its defects, seems to have had a rapid, frightening effect, for prices have already dropped in several districts.

Some local bodies refuse to appoint commissions to administer the act locally, but the matter is generally followed by indignant protests from the inhabitants.

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well."

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles."

"I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for you."

"—Mrs. MARY BOYD, 1421 6th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio."

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative. Some doctors advise so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Some doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years experience is at your service.

Sir Oliver Lodge on Atomic Properties

Hopes We Will Not Know Their Power Yet

Birmingham, Eng.—Sir Oliver Lodge, the eminent scientist, in an address at Midland institute in connection with the memorial ceremonies held on the occasion of the one hundredth anniversary of the death of James Watt, inventor of the steam engine, again touched upon the subject of atomic properties of matter.

Sir Oliver declared that the first utilization of atomic properties of matter was in wireless telephony. He added that if the atomic energy of an ounce of matter could be utilized it would be sufficient to raise the German ships sunk in the Scapa Flow. He said, however, that he hoped the human race would not discover how to use this energy until it had brains and morality enough to use it properly, because if the discovery were made before its time, and by the wrong people, this planet would be unsafe.

German Troops For Baltic Front

All Warnings of Allies Are Disregarded in Monarchic Designs, Vorwärts Asserts

Berlin.—The assertion is made by the Vorwärts correspondent that the German militia in the Baltic provinces is rapidly growing and that officers and men are arriving there daily from Germany. Even the smallest places in Courland are strongly occupied.

Posters displayed in the office of Staff Captain Stower, at Bausk Courland, says the correspondent, read:

"I put for the lazier and the empire against democracy. We had rather die than be dishonored." "Pretense is being made of the disbandment of a few units," the correspondent adds, "but troops are being transferred to Admiral Kolchak's army."

School Lands For Soldiers

Manitoba Lays Six Million Acres of Unimproved Lands Before Men

Winnipeg.—By an order-in-council passed, Acting Premier Hon. Edward Brown and the provincial cabinet placed six millions of acres of unimproved farm lands on the market for returned soldiers. This is the greatest move made by the government up to the present time for the re-establishment of returned men.

The order-in-council provides for the establishment of an arbitration board to determine the price the province shall receive for its land. Geo. A. Metcalf, administrator of succession duties for the provincial government, will act as arbitrator for the province of Manitoba. The federal government will also name a member of the arbitration board.

The land which has been thrown open is all unimproved, much of it suitable for farming. The land is known at the present time as provincial school lands. The value placed on it in the public accounts of 1918 is $13,000,000.

Fiume Isolated By Italy

Investigation Has Shown That Plan Originated in Venice

London.—Fiume has been isolated from the world by the Italian government, which is apparently taking steps to meet the situation that has arisen through the action of Captain D'Annunzio in forcibly taking possession of the city and in forcing allied and Yugo-Slav forces to leave. The veil of the censorship was drawn, and since that time little has been learned of events in the city.

Investigation of the incident has shown, according to advices, that the plan to seize Fiume originated in Venice, the prefect of which city is said to have been involved.

Will Bring Down The High Prices

Judge Robson States That Price Probe Will Cover All Necessities

Winnipeg.—Judge H. A. Robson, chairman of the board of commerce, declares that drastic action cutting down the cost of necessities will be taken by the board of commerce just as soon as the evidence at the different probes has been taken.

No advance on necessities will be tolerated, he said, and the board aims to prohibit the sale of all fancy basons. The retailer who takes a profit in excess of one cent per pound on any sale of sugar is liable to prosecution. This applies to Winnipeg dealers and is not limited to the East, Mr. Robson emphasized.

"Regulations covering all packing plants and including such products as butter, eggs, cured meats and cold storage products in general will be drafted shortly. The order will be very definite, Mr. Robson said.

The board will deal with all necessities of life, including house and clothing, Mr. Robson said. Prosecution will be made in every case where there is violation of the set price by dealers. The board itself may impose the fines or instigate criminal proceedings against the guilty parties.

Mr. Robson was not ready to give an outline of the provisions to be made for checking up on violations of the board's orders, but declared that every complaint brought to the board would be fully investigated and dealt with immediately and to the full extent of the law.

Cost of living probes are about to be instituted in Calgary, Edmonton and Regina, Mr. Robson said. He has just wired the appointment of men to take charge of these probes. Major Duncan Stewart will conduct the hearing in Calgary, S. W. Fies, in Edmonton, and James S. Rankin in Regina.

Irish Daily Newspaper Is Suppressed

Cork Examiner Accepted Announcement for Prospects of Irish Loan

Dublin.—The determination of the authorities to repress all manifestations of republican activities is shown by the suppression of the Cork Examiner, one of Ireland's chief daily newspapers.

Although it is a constitutionalist organ and opposed to the Sinn Fein, the Examiner printed a page prospect of the republican loan, assuming, it is declared, that the prohibition of references thereto which existed under the censorship lapsed with the withdrawal of the censorship.

The military authorities, however, returned full powers, and raided the premises and removed part of the plant. The same advertisement was offered to the Dublin dailies, which refused the risk.

Ten Regiments To Defend Fiume

Italian Nationalists, Although Suppressed, Are Still Aiding in Movement

Rome.—D'Annunzio's force, according to the Idea Nazionale, consists of ten regiments, in addition to four battalions of Fiume volunteers. He has occupied a fortified line around Fiume as a strategic position. The citizens are supporting D'Annunzio, the newspaper adds, and are determined to destroy the town should resistance prove impossible.

The Nationalists are organizing demonstrations throughout Italy in favor of D'Annunzio. The government, however, is energetically repressing these.

French Troops Are Sent To Armenia

Million Pounds Of Bacon In Storage

W. F. O'Connor Anxious to Know If Price Cannot Be Lowered

Toronto.—W. F. O'Connor, K.C., vice-chairman of the Board of Commerce, proposes that Canadian consumers of bacon shall have an opportunity to get in some of the bacon sides which have been exported to the old country and sold at comparatively low prices. He initiated, after E. C. Fox, general manager of the William Davies company, and J. A. Nelson, superintendent of the Davies' retail stores in Toronto, had given evidence, that a million pounds of this commodity is at present locked up in the Davies plant, awaiting a day on which the English consumer has used up the supply of Wiltshire sides he has on hand, would be corralled for home consumption.

To Mr. Fox's explanation that this was inferior bacon to that sold in Canada, and was sold at less cost in consequence, Mr. O'Connor wanted to know if it were not possible to sell the cheaper bacon in Canada. "We have come to the stage," he declared, "where the other bacon is too expensive."

Mr. Fox said the Canadians would buy the cheaper bacon that was sent to England.

"It may be worth while to test with this million pounds to see if you have difficulty in disposing of it," retorted Mr. O'Connor.

"Certainly, we would be glad to try it," he added.

The commissioner told Mr. Fox that the Canadian consumer was not getting a square deal when his bacon cuts were regulated by European famine prices. "Personally," he said, "I think it would be a good thing in Canada for these in control to say to the producers of bacon, 'You have got to supply your Canadian trade at fair prices, before we allow you to forfeit that stuff out of the country.'"

Mr. Fox repeatedly denied that the William Davies company was interested in any packers' committee. "Then why is it," asked Lieut.-Col. Price, counsel for the board in the enquiry, "that the prices remain about the same for one week in the stockyards?"

"I suppose because we all know about what the other fellow is doing and we all have the same selling margin," was Mr. Fox's reply.

Mr. Fox promised to produce a chart giving details and information as to costs, selling prices and profits.

Superintendent Nelson, of the Davies company, said his efforts were directed toward keeping prices down and retelling the volume of business. The higher the selling price of any commodity, the less his concern could make out of it, he said.

At the conclusion of Mr. Nelson's testimony, Commissioner O'Connor said: "You have undertaken to say that you are not making any profit. We will find out what the profit is before we are done here."

To Allay Unrest

Less Likelihood of a Railway Strike Among Shoppers

Toronto.—There is little likelihood of labor trouble among the railroad shippers on the Canadian railroads, according to J. Clarke, schedule representative of Canadian railroads for the International Union of Boilermakers, the headquarters of which are in Kansas City.

Mr. Clarke is in Toronto at present to allay unrest among railroad shippers, who are uneasy because of the delay in dealing with their grievances, which came before the Canadian Railway Board in May and were deferred until the demands of the United States railway workers were satisfactorily settled.

Russian Front Combined

Paris.—Through the capture of Omsk by the anti-Bolshevik forces, communication has been established between the allies on the Archangel and Murmansk coast fronts.

Paris.—Ten thousand French troops are to be sent into Armenia, according to Mersina and Alexandretta, through Mersina and Alexandretta, according to an understanding reached by the British and French for a realignment of their forces in Asia Minor. These troops will replace the British troops for the most part, and while the number is not large enough to keep up a line of communication far north into Armenia, it is generally agreed the French will have a steady effect on the Armenian situation, even if they do not proceed far north of Mardin (Mardin) and the line of the Bagdad railway.

The interior of Armenia is mountainous and military men are agreed that a force of 10,000 probably cannot risk an extension from the Mediterranean to Erzerum, Trebizond and other points near the Black Sea, where the Armenians are hard pressed by the Kurds, Turks and Georgians. It is not known how soon the French forces will be able to reach Alexandretta and Mersina.

Stamping Out Profiteers

British Government Classes Profiteers With Rats and Other Vermin

London.—Charles McCurdy, parliamentary secretary to the Food Minister, declared that the government classes profiteers with rats and other vermin, and is determined to stamp them out. Mr. McCurdy was speaking at the opening day of the administration of the new Profiteering Act and alluded to the new Canadian statute dealing with a similar evil.

Criticism against the English act is mainly on the ground that it will never touch the big profiteer, but merely render the small trader liable to espionage and persecution. Meanwhile, street markets are increasing, instituted in the crowded streets. Their establishment is frequently followed by a drop in prices at the neighboring shops.

The lack of housing accommodation is certainly a vital problem as profiteering.

Riga Peace Meeting

Copenhagen.—An important conference has been in session at Riga regarding not only peace with the Soviet government in Russia, but the formation of a Baltic federation, according to advices from Latvian sources. There has been no actual acceptance of the Soviet government's terms, but, on the whole, it appears that the Baltic federation has been realized to the extent that an agreement has been reached for a customs union of Letonia and Lithuania.

Soldiers Are Homeless

London.—Hotteliers at Newport, Monmouthshire, interrupted the borough council meeting, protesting from the gallery. There were, they claimed, 600 homeless families in the town. Liverpool corporation is spending £22,000 in converting army huts into private dwellings. Other local authorities are also attracted by this temporary solution.

Marshal Foch Lost Only Son

Paris.—Marshal Foch has recently asked the Belgian government to have a search made for the body of his son who was killed in August, 1914, in the Belgian Ardennes. Marshal Foch has religiously refrained from mentioning his lost son and few knew that the younger Foch was killed earlier in the war.

Our Royal Visitor

London is Stirred By Reception to Prince in Canada

The British press is much pleased by the warmth shown by Canadians in their reception to the Prince of Wales. The London Observer says editorially: Even Londoners, with memories still fresh of their own moving demonstrations of affection towards their sovereignty and his house, must be stirred by the wonderful greeting which Canada is giving to the Prince of Wales. What does it all mean, this enthusiasm? What sort of asset is it for our imperial future? First and foremost it is a tribute to the qualities of the Prince himself, to his happy blend of freshness and earnestness, his simplicity and sincerity. He had been an underdog among undergraduates, he became a soldier, a politician, a statesman. Today he is a Canadian among Canadians. In all the phases of his varied life he has displayed the royal gifts of simplicity and insight, and by them had won hearts.

"He has done it all so easily and naturally that it is hard to appreciate the real difficulty of his achievement." But let us bear in mind that this young man, who is daily adding to the ties of personal confidences which already bind him to millions, is heir to the throne, the position in the world. A man with such a future awaiting him must find it hard not to become a remote, inaccessible being, obscured by the glitter and parade of ceremonial. Yet our Prince knows how to take all he does with him and spontaneity.

"His days in Canada have been few, and his daily official engagements numerous, but in those few days he has triumphed over formal programs and given Canada an impression of him that is entirely personal and intimate."

The following editorial appears in the London Weekly Dispatch: "The success of the Prince of Wales' Canadian tour has been a revelation. At home his Royal Highness in a few months established himself as a general favorite. Without effort he gained a reputation for saying the right word and doing the right thing. This peculiar felicity has not deserted him on the other side of the Atlantic. He has caught the trans-Atlantic atmosphere and adapted himself, as it were instinctively, to new and strange conditions. We are confident that these popular demonstrations are no passing manifestations of transient emotions. They must needs have enduring results. Not only has the Prince increased the goodwill, loyalty and affection of our Canadian brethren to the royal house; he has also succeeded, by the deep personal devotion which he has aroused, in immensely strengthening the bonds of empire."

"The Daily Chronicle, in its leading editorial, says: 'Every one in this country who appreciates the value of Anglo-American friendship will be glad to learn that the Prince of Wales has been offered, and has consented to accept, the freedom of the city of New York, in the course of his approaching visit to the United States. Is there any other foreign country but the United States which has it in its power to pay the visitor such a characteristically British compliment? Is there any other visitor to whom Americans could offer it with such imposing significance? Just as President Wilson is the first chief of the American republic to be made a freeman, not only of London, but of many other British cities, so is the Prince of Wales the first member of the British royal family to be offered the freedom of the principal city in America.'

"The Prince of Wales is the first member of his family whom Americans have decided to welcome as they would say, 'with both hands.' It will be a great event, not only for the Prince, but also for Britain and America."

Trade With Argentina

Washington, District of Columbia.—Argentina now is among the eight largest customers of the United States. Statistics show that trade between the two countries in the year ending June 30 amounted to $304,000,000. Countries which exceed Argentina in commerce with the United States are the British Isles, Canada, France, Japan, Cuba, Italy, and Belgium.

Not Afraid Of

German Traders

Sheffield Trade Has Nothing to Fear From German Competition

Recent commercial pilgrimages to Germany from the United Kingdom have been unproductive of valuable information. The visit of the Sheffield cutlery manufacturers to Germany, however, has convinced these gentlemen that home manufacturers can quite hold their own in the markets of the world. They have seen a good deal which may be helpful to them, and they are making a report to the British Government on this subject, but the general opinion held by the whole of the deputation is that if Sheffield will only maintain its high quality, and provided that the workmen will co-operate in increasing the output, the trade has nothing to fear from German competition.

The visit of paper manufacturers was equally interesting. Joseph Dixon, one of the largest manufacturers in the kingdom, does not hesitate to say that he and his colleagues learned very little in Germany. They say one or two tricks are resorted to at the German mills, including one from which it was possible to make common paper appear very much like high quality product, but Mr. Dixon thinks it is very unlikely that the British manufacturers will resort to these methods, and he holds the view that with better relations between workmen and manufacturers, England can well maintain its position in the paper-making industry.

Ships And Lightning

Practically All Vessels Provided With Lightning Conductors

The fate of Airship N.S.-11, also of the schooner Meridian, which were both struck by lightning, set on fire and destroyed, is a very rare one. Practically all vessels are provided with lightning conductors in one form or another, and while there is never a day in the year in which ships are not sailing or steaming through thunderstorms, there are very few records indeed of vessels being struck or even if struck of serious damage being done.

Still, the end of both airship and schooner is a proof that such things do occur, and there have been several similar cases in the past.

The British ship Moses, bound from Smyrna to Queenstown, ran into a furious storm off Malta. Towards midnight lightning struck the main mast and flashed down the hold. Whether there was some explosion or not no one knows, but the whole ship broke in two and sank in three minutes. The only survivor was her skipper, Captain Pearson, who was picked up seven hours later, clinging to some wreckage.

Early in the nineteenth century the British warship Lord Charlotte, lying in the river Hooghly, below Calcutta, was struck. Her powder magazines were fired by the blast, and she blew up with a shock felt for miles around.

About the same date the King George, from Bombay, was sailing up river at Cadiz, when a flash of lightning struck the mizzenmast and she was blown up with a shock felt for miles around.

Early in the nineteenth century the British warship Lord Charlotte, lying in the river Hooghly, below Calcutta, was struck. Her powder magazines were fired by the blast, and she blew up with a shock felt for miles around.

General Smuts Forms Cabinet Capetown, South Africa.—Gen. Jan Christian Smuts has accepted the Governor-General's invitation and has formed a government to succeed the Botha ministry. In addition to the Premiership, General Smuts has undertaken the direction of native affairs, and for the present will remain Minister for Defense, while his former colleagues retain the portfolios they held in the Botha government.

Remove All

Temptation

That Peace, Prosperity and Happiness May Rule in the Land

I want to make an earnest appeal to everyone, both drinkers and non-drinkers, to remove all temptation to drink out of the way of men and boys in the coming referendum. I have seen sickly, trembling wrecks of men become healthy and strong under total abstinence, only to fall back to the old condition in a few weeks or months owing to some fool urging them to drink. I have personally known a clever young man who went to an asylum and begged them to take him in for a year that he might escape temptation.

I know all bar rooms are legally closed against the sale of intoxicant and the vicious trading company. But it is only suggestion. Go into any bar room and you will see men drinking half strength beer and tempting one another to drink. While you do not see men badly drunk as before, yet many are distinctly doled. When a man comes in during cold weather and drinks four glasses of this beer in quick succession you know it is not because he is thirsty, but for its alcoholic effect.

This beer which is supposed to be non-intoxicating is as strong as English small beer, which is only 1 1/4 per cent. Judge Steeves, of Moncton, N.B., recently gave his decision that beer much weaker than our temperance beer is intoxicating. The "stag-fer test" and the "silly talk test" are no good, because many men can be very drunk, especially on beer, and not show it. Men who are never known to be drunk have died of some alcoholic disease, and men who have never been known to be drunk during their lives have left behind in their families many consumptives, drunkards and nervous weaklings, doomed for life.

Why keep up the temptation at all? Several states of the Union will not permit anything containing the smallest quantity of alcohol to be sold in public bar rooms, and at least three states will not allow even an imitation beer to be sold to tempt men and remind them of their drinking days. There must be a reason. Then let all unite in urging the government to perfect the work they have so well begun by removing all forms of temptation to drink, that peace, prosperity and happiness may rule in the land.—H. Arnott, M.B., M.C.P.S., Department of Social Service.

Bolshevik To Be Deported

Evidence Found at Vancouver of Its Dominion-wide Activities

Vancouver.—Sava Karoba has been ordered deported by the immigration commission. Karoba, whose real name is Kadowa and who sometimes used the name of Sava Charney, was arrested by the R.N.W.M.P. when the roundup of Russian agitators was made during the summer.

According to the evidence, there exists throughout Canada, and actively affiliated with similar organizations in the United States and throughout the world, a strong Russian revolutionary society that has the aim of red revolution and the upsetting of governments and the establishment of Bolshevism rule.

Sava Karoba, the evidence showed, was organizer in Canada for the Russian Social Anarchist party. This is said to be the parent body of the Russian Workers' Union. Their motto, as shown by banners in a photograph taken at Toronto, translated, is: "In this fight we will gain our right." "All for one, one for all." "Long live the world revolutionary Bolshevism."

Against Trade With Germany

McBourne—Premier Hughes, addressing a meeting of the Nationalists' Federation, said that Germany stood today the best organized nation in the world for a commercial war. He said some people had spoken to him of trade relations with Germany. If they wanted trade relations with Germany, they must get somebody else. (Cheers.)

Saving Strength

In The Home

Thoroughly Relax and Throw Off the Nervous Tension

The days when it was considered "lazy" to sit down to prepare vegetables, or to sit in a chair in the kitchen, was long ago. The modern housewife is a busy woman, and with them the demands on the housemaker have increased. Science has taught us that the body, as a great machine, is even in need of repair, building up wasted tissues, furnishing heat and energy—that even in sleep the great throbbing, pulsating, vital work is being accomplished—just the fact of existence means expended energy, in a greater or lesser degree. Times have changed!

There is a greater social demand, perhaps more clubs and meetings, which mean entertaining, in turn, and changes of gowns and hats. The daily menus have changed, demanding more careful planning to keep within the income. The children require more and more "style" to dress them. With a deeper knowledge of danger, and increased population, the perplexity of keeping a sanitary home has grown. Good help at a moderate wage is almost impossible to obtain, and so the housemaker today is often heard to say: "I don't know where to begin; I have so many things to do." Then the best thing seems to be to rest—to make use of easy chair, or couch, and thoroughly relax, even for ten or fifteen minutes. Throw off the nervous tension, with the feeling that everything will be right and accomplished if taken quietly and systematically. Close the eyes, let go nerve, brain and muscle strain, and rest.

Do this before the "hopeless" feeling comes, before being utterly exhausted, before being so tired that fifteen minutes will not seem to come. Then start again to accomplish more with less fatigue. It is fortunate, if one can learn to save strength before the necessity of saving arises. Worry causes much waste of energy.—American Cookery.

Conditions In Syria

British Leader Says He Agreed With Representative of France on All Points

Paris.—Field-Marshal Allenby, commander of the allied forces in Asia Minor, talked on conditions in Syria in an interview given at Maracchia on his arrival there. He declared that he has been in agreement on all points with the representative of France in Syria, and he justified the arrest of Emir Saïd at Beirut recently.

Field-Marshal Allenby declared he was willing to have the Emir released if the French government decided to have him expelled from Syria, whereas his behavior, the field-marshal declared, could only tend to induce disorder.

Field-Marshal Allenby asserted that he had always done his very best to facilitate the task of France in Syria.

Escaped From Bolsheviks

Grand Duke Alexandrovitch Is Now In Civilization After Many Adventures

Stockholm.—Former Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, brother of former Emperor Nicholas, who was appointed Regent of Russia when the Romanov dynasty was overthrown, but later was exiled by the Bolsheviki, has succeeded in escaping from the Bolsheviki, together with his secretary and a sailor, according to an announcement made by M. Sossoulov, Michael's aide, in the Svenska Dagbladet. Michael is said to have made his escape in a motor boat, cruising along the river Haimi to Kruska, from which place he subsequently went abroad and since has remained inconspicuous.

Kolchak on Offensive

Omsk.—General headquarters of the Kolchak army announced that the offensive was being pressed successfully along the Maritime front. The enemy is being driven back everywhere with severe losses, the announcement says, and has been compelled to abandon prisoners and important booty.

Saskatchewan

Hail Losses

Now Estimated at Nearly Two Million Dollars for This Year

Saskatoon, Sask.—At a meeting of the directors of the Saskatchewan Municipal Hail Insurance Association, held in Regina, it was estimated that the hail losses this year in the province will necessitate the paying of an indemnity of $1,950,000. In order that this claim may be met, it will be necessary to levy an excess seeded acreage rate of 22 cents per acre.

The total number of claims received up to August 30 was 7,380, and while it is expected that there may be a few more to come in, it is not anticipated that these late claims will materially change the total estimate.

The flat rate of 4 cents per acre levied on all lands within the municipalities adopting municipal hail insurance is estimated to produce this year a revenue of about $800,000. It is estimated that about 6,000,000 acres of cultivated land are liable for the excess levy of 22 cents per acre, which will add $1,320,000 to the revenue, bringing the total up to about $2,120,000. This is the first year since the passing of the legislation providing for an excess seeded acreage rate that it has been taken advantage of.

Finding Another Pompeii

Newly Discovered City Will Eventually Prove Actually Richer

During the war, archaeological excavations were continued at the Italian colony of Cyrenaica, on the north African coast, and now comes the news that what has been found already promises the uncovering of another ancient city as important as Pompeii. Once upon a time the spot was a Greek colony, with the civilization of Greece transplanted to the soil of Africa. The work has been carried on during the war under the supervision of Prof. Lucio Mariani, director of the archaeological services of the Ministry of the Colonies, and the prediction is now made that the newly discovered city will eventually prove actually richer than Pompeii in its evidences of a past civilization. Here have been found already statues of the Graces, a Hermes, an Eros, an Alexander the Great, and most impressive of all, the Aphrodite of Cyrene, which is said by certain connoisseurs to be a fair rival in beauty to the Venus of Milo and the Venus of Cnidus. The discoveries have extended over a good many years. It may be added, however, as an illustration of the modified joys of archaeology, that the discovery of a new mystery into the history of art, that the Aphrodite of Cyrene lacks both head and arms. The work may wonder what she looked like as well as what she was supposed to be doing.

Bond Investment Is Double Acting

Western Grain Grower Has Chance To Do Himself Two Good Turns

When the farmer of the West—or any part of Canada for that matter—invests his money in Victory Bonds he does himself two good turns. He gets two birds with the one shot. He aids the country in making a profitable market for his grain and other products, so that he can make more money. He puts his spare cash into the soundest security in the world, and that brings him five and a half per cent. Previous issues have also proven that the bonds have quick marketability above par.

Two dollar wheat, or rather $2.15 wheat, is a glorious fact for the Western farmer simply because the Dominion of Canada has been able to dispose of it to needy buyers who had not the cash to pay. The Victory Loans provided the cash, which has gone out in the form of credit advances to Great Britain and other countries.

The United States has had to finance the sale of American wheat abroad in exactly the same way by loaning the money to the countries buying. It is hardly reasonable to suppose that the American Government, deeply engaged in its own business, would be eager to provide foreign credits for our farmers. So it is simply up to our farmers to help themselves.

In buying all the Victory Bonds they can swing the Westerners help themselves to a very profitable investment and to a good market for their products.
